

FIGHTING TO MAKE THE WORLD LESS BORING

THE ADVENTURISTS

MISSION STATEMENT

Our planet used to slap us about the face-cheeks with iron fists of adventure every day. Maps had edges to walk off. Men feared the monsters that swam the seas. Entire civilizations lay unknown.

But now, the entire surface of the Earth has been scanned by satellites, shovelled into your mobile phone and tagged with twattery about which restaurant serves the best mocha-latte-frappeshite.

Getting lost and in trouble is no longer an occupational hazard of walking to the market. It is an art-form. One we strive to perfect.

We live to find ways to make the world a bit more difficult. To bring chaos into our over-sanitized lives. To create adventures where you don't know what will happen tomorrow or if you'll even make it to the end.

Why though? Well, because we think there's no greater moment than those fateful few seconds before you leap into an abyss of uncertainty and disaster.

We're The Adventurists. Come, join the fight.

HISTORY

The Adventurists were born when founder and chief Idiot Tom Morgan and the only ever-so-slightly less idiotic Mr Joolz decided, whilst heavily intoxicated in 2002, that they'd try and drive Tom's clapped out Fiat 126 to Mongolia. The following day, they headed out for Ulaanbaatar with just a hunting knife, a packet of cigars and heads fuzzier than that fruit pastille you found under your sofa.

Needless to say, they never made it to Mongolia. They got as far as Iran but got turned away as they looked so pathetic. It was, however, already too late. The seed of The Adventurists had already sprouted deep within their delightfully gaseous bellies.

From these humble beginnings, The Adventurists has morphed into the gigantic force for boredom crushing that it is today. We now run 27 events annually in 11 countries - that travel through more than 50 countries.

We run events on land, in the air and on the high seas, in which tens of thousands of people have participated. Some of them have even enjoyed it.

By doing so, we have helped raise more than £7.5 million for charity too, something we're pretty bloody chuffed about.
